How to Convert a PDF File to Word or PowerPoint File.1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to a method for producing a polypropylene polycrystalline film having an excellent transparency or haze (which is expressed by the value of light transmittance % at transmittance of 45° according to JIS-P 8133) by using a polypropylene resin having a particular weight-average molecular weight Mw and a melt flow rate MFR (permanent method: 180.4 g, 230 ° C., load: 2.16 kg) to form a film by the T-die coating method, and an apparatus therefor. 2. Description of the

Related Art Currently, known propylene homopolymer films and propylene copolymer films are used as films for packaging of agrochemicals, foods, health foods, etc. However, these films are insufficient in their transparency or haze and they are therefore subjected to improvement in clarity. As a method for obtaining a high transparency or haze, for example, there is an attempt to increase the content of isotactic polypropylene (which is obtained from propylene by using catalyst having particularly high isotactic stereoregularity) (JP-A-63-125314, pages 3-4, and JP-A-1-240712, pages 2-3). This method, however, has the problem of a reduced productivity due to a large content of isotactic polypropylene. Further, the content of the isotactic polypropylene is about 50% at the most and the addition of the isotactic polypropylene does not always provide a sufficient effect to improve the transparency or haze. To overcome these problems, proposed are techniques of obtaining a film having a high haze by adding a small quantity of a low-molecular weight polymer having a low stereoregularity or a large quantity of an inorganic filler (e.g. JP-A-1-292845, pages 2-3). These techniques have a problem, however, that haze is not satisfactory and further transparency is low depending on the materials used. There is thus
